checking receipts. - and you haven't heard anything? not even on the streets? - like i said to all your other guys, i don't know nothing. - okay, well, i know who you are, markey. and i understand that you might try to handle this on your own, but i guarantee you we'll do a better job, dog. - i got nothing else to say. we done? - yeah, for now. [sighs] - anything? - no, man, it's been, like, a stretch of 11 open homicides in that neighborhood over the past month. i don't think anybody's saying anything.

direct threats. - so this is a gang war now. all right, bring in someone from cpic, we got to track this in real time. every one of those posts could be a hit. - all right, this is tk's manager. mark cains, aka "markey." now, markey's a southside heavyweight. since tk signed with him, the kid's been picked up by patrol three times. he always skates off, but the arrest records are who's who. - big friends, big enemies. - all right, so far, it looks like the gunners are members of one of three g park lord factions. three corner kings, 71st street rollers, and the shreveport knights. we got to narrow it down from there. - that area's always hot. i mean, you got the three g park factions and the southside hustlers in a 12 block radius. - it could easily be a retaliation for some online beef or power struggle.
